

New York City Highlights

Description

default watermark

Central Park, NYC

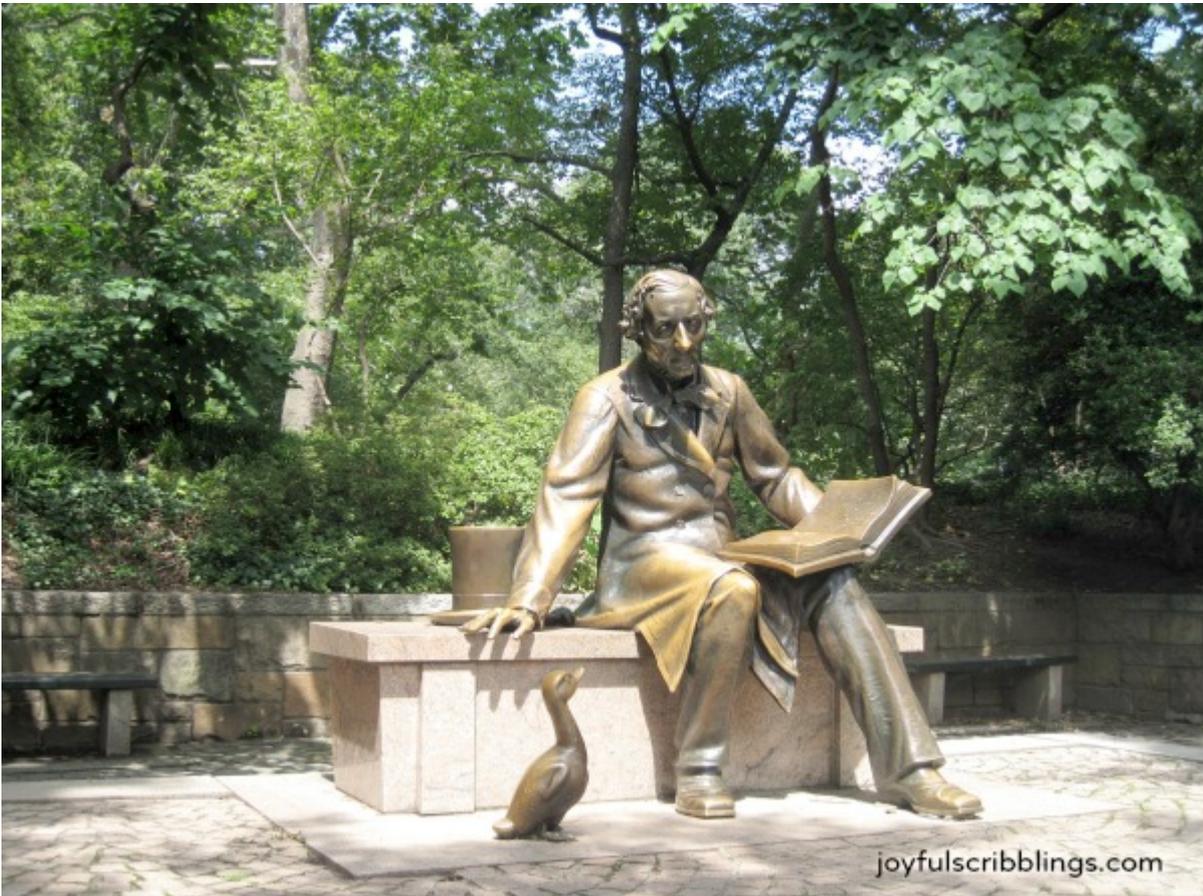

I thought I'd share some pictures from my mother and daughter trip to New York City this summer. I have been to New York City several times and there is always something new to explore.

John Lennon

Watermark

Memorial in Central Park

guided tour by fields which is an l Park before, but d where films like

Manhattan Sky

Line

Chelsea Market

The glass

structure on top is Diane VonFurstenburg's bedroom.

We also did a walking tour of Greenwich Village, Chelsea Market, the Meat Packing District and High Line Park. Our guide Danielle was excellent. Chelsea Market is the original Nabisco Company building where the Oreo cookie was invented. It's now home to several bakeries, restaurants and shops.

The upstairs level is where some of the Food Network is filmed and other shows. The building itself is beautiful and the owner has kept all of the architectural features consistent with the building's authenticity. We also walked part of the High Line. It's a park which sits on an old railroad track

ations and some Barry Diller.

Me and Amy

My daughter's favorite cupcakes- Melissa's Cupcakes New York City has some of the best bakeries in the world in my opinion. Our friends and my daughter and I love a good cupcake! We sampled Crumbs, Magnolia Bakery and Melissa's Cupcakes. Crumbs and Melissa's won for best overall cupcake. The first day we arrived we did some shopping in SoHo and had lunch at the ABC Kitchen which is located inside the ABC Carpet and Home store. It's a very cool store, but a little out of my price range. The kitchen had a very simple and serene atmosphere and the food was delicious. I had to try the hamburger because Gayle King rated it one of the best burgers. It was a very good hamburger, but I wouldn't say it was life changing.

Our last stop on our trip was The Doughnut Plant. I had read that the coconut creme doughnut was amazing and it didn't disappoint. I hope you enjoyed my little glimpse of the Big Apple.

Date Created

2012/08/24

Author

queenie

default watermark