

$50 Pottery Barn Gift Card Giveaway

Description

Pottery Barn

Pottery Barn is one of my favorite stores. I don't always love their prices, but you can sometimes catch some great sales. I love to browse their catalog for inspiration. I also love the paint colors they feature every season and have copied their colors for several of my rooms. I pour over their catalog like a kid studying a Toys R Us catalog at Christmas time or back in my day it was the JC Penney catalog. Right now I love all of the mercury glass featured in the store from ornaments and votive candle holders to glass balls. My good friend Christine gave me a glass two tiered stand like the one pictured above. A good friend of hers has it displayed with Christmas items. Christine liked it so much she purchased one for me as well as herself. It has multiple uses and can be used throughout the year. It's what we like to call a good thing and is one of Pottery Barn's staples with a good price point. They offer three different sizes. The below pictures show how we decorated our glass stands.

Janelle™s display

Christine's display

My display

There are two ways you can enter this giveaway.

1. Post something from my blog to pinterest. It can be from any of my posts. This is worth 2 entries. Use the pinterest button at the bottom of any of my posts and leave me a comment here that you pinned something.
2. Leave a comment on what your favorite home decor item is.

The last day to enter this giveway is Wednesday, December 12.

Iâ€™d like to thank all of you who participated in my week of giveaways. I will be posting the winners on Thursday, December 13 and will follow up with those who won by email so I can get information to mail out your prizes.

Date Created

2012/12/09

Author

queenie

default watermark