

Merry Christmas

Description

defau

These are a few of my favorite handmade ornaments.

This will be my last post until after Christmas. Iâ€™m feeling the need to unplug from social media and focus on my family for awhile. I feel like as a society we can get so caught up in tweeting, texting, facebook and instagram that we are missing out on being in the present moment. I have difficulty enough as it is staying in the present and not thinking of my future to doâ€™s or should haveâ€™s.

My wish for you is that you find peace within and the joy in your journey. Thank you for reading my joyful scribblings. I value your comments and the opportunity to share what brings me joy. I hope you have a safe, healthy and joyous holiday season!

I recently started subscribing to Breneâ€™s website ordinary courage. I loved what she had to say about joy despite the events that happened in Newtown and wanted to share it with you. You can read it here.

Date Created

2012/12/22

Author

queenie

default watermark