

Super Bowl Snacks

Description

default watermark

I love to go to Super Bowl parties for the food, commercials and half time show. I'm not a huge football fan, but I love the social aspect of it. My super easy new favorite appetizer and a crowd pleaser are Aidell's Chicken Meatballs Hawaiian Style with Pineapple and Trader Joe's General Tsao Stir Fry Sauce. The meatballs are already cooked you just heat them up in a pan with the sauce and you have a hearty appetizer. I've made these several times for friends and they are always a hit. My kids love them too, but unfortunately I've made them so many times they're now burned out on them. I purchased the meatballs at Sam's Club, but I'm pretty sure you can find them at the grocery store.

Photo: Jennifer Davick; Styling: Lydia DeGaris Pursell

I found this yummy Loaded Baked Potato Dip on pinterest. The recipe is originally from Southern Living Magazine via My Recipes.com. I've made it several times and served it with chips instead of the fries. It tastes just like the toppings on a baked potato, hence the name. Click here for the recipe.

Another great dip recipe I shared in a past post is Buffalo Chicken Dip.

50
Mouth Watering
FOOTBALL
Party Recipes AT
chef in training

I found this list of 50 football recipes at Chef In Training. If you click on the link it will take you to the recipes. I hope this gives you some ideas if you are planning or attending a Super Bowl party.

Date Created

2013/01/29

Author

queenie

default watermark