I love the Threshold line of products at Target. They can be found in almost every department. These are a few of my favorite things right now. I purchased the two wood vases. However, I don't think you can use them for real flowers. I spotted them at my friend Christine's house and fell in love with them. They look like something Nate Berkus would have in his home. I love the natural element and I thought they would look good paired alongside some sea shells. They have a coastal feel to me.

Iâ€™m still dreaming of owning a house on the beach. If I canâ€™t currently be at the beach, I can bring the beach to me.
