

Simple Joys

Summer is officially over for my kids. School started this week and I can't recall a cooler August than the one we are currently experiencing. It's starting to feel like Fall, but I'm not getting my hopes up just yet. I thought I'd reflect upon some of the simple joys of summer. We enjoy spending time with our friends at their lake house. The kids love tubing and riding around on the Jet Skis. I personally enjoy laying out on their dock listening to music and going to lunch by boat. There is something so chic and fun to me about traveling by boat to dine even if your just going to a hole in the wall.

The fruits of summer are also a simple joy. Watermelon is my favorite summer fruit, but I also love a fresh ripe peach. We have a peach tree on the back corner of our house. The poor tree has weathered many Kansas storms. Despite having limbs broken almost every year it still produces peaches although not as many as when it was in its prime. You can read more about our tree here.

One of my favorite things to make with the peaches is peach cobbler. My husband typically requests it every summer. This years recipe came from Taste of Home. You can find the Colorado peach cobbler recipe by clicking on this link to Taste of Home.

What are some simple joys that you love about the summer?
