

10 No Carve Pumpkins

Description

Since we are officially into October, it's now safe to start talking pumpkins. I love pumpkins and I love pumpkin flavored things. By November my kids are tired of pumpkin. For years I hosted a pumpkin decorating and carving party. When my kids were younger my party was geared more toward the decorating. I pulled out the Elmer's glue, pipe cleaners, googly eyes, feathers, sharpies, buttons, and just about any item you could stick to a pumpkin. I like the idea of carving pumpkins, but I hate the mess and scooping out all of the goop from the inside. I'm also not very handy when it comes to wielding a knife. However, I have a few friends that are. You can check out my friend's house he carved into a pumpkin here. Even Martha would be impressed.

I have come across tons of cute ideas for decorating pumpkins that thankfully don't require carving techniques. I've been wanting to make a book page pumpkin since I saw the idea floating around Pinterest last year. The instructions to make one can be found in the link below. Now I have a whole other slew of ideas to add to my list of "want to make's". I hope you enjoy my picks. If you'd like to pin the collection on Pinterest pin this post (be sure to click on the title). Otherwise go to each individual pumpkin link to pin the project.
