

My Fall Decor

Description

default watermark

The change in seasons is a simple joy for me. I'm never quite ready for winter but I love fall .

crisp fall nights

pumpkins

bright red and yellow leaves

comfort foods like soup and chili

bonfires

watching my kids perform in the marching band at high school football games

candles

hot baths

bittersweet stems

default watermark

I put away my most of my shells and bring out little touches of fall decor to display around my home. As you can see from my photos I still love owls. I like surrounding myself with fall decor for a few short months before it's time to bring out all of my Christmas decorations.

I collect these trick -or-treater figurines by Artist, Lori Mitchell. I fell in love with them years ago and used to add one or two to my collection every year. However, the sofa table I display them on is pretty full. Unless I find one I must have, I've put a halt to any new additions. This takes some tremendous will power at times. They are just so darn cute. Do you collect Lori Mitchell figurines? She makes them for all of the holidays and special themes as well.

My front door wreath and outdoor pot were inspired by Ricki at Red Cedar Nursery. She has the most creative containers and I love taking classes at Red Cedar. Iâ€™ve written about Red Cedar in a past post here. I had purchased the leaf wreath last year from Target, but it needed a little something extra. Red Cedar sells metal owls you can screw onto a branch. Rickiâ€™s husband kindly assembled mine because I knew it would probably never get done. I wired the owl and branch to my wreath and then added a wire bittersweet stem I had from a past project.

I had some fountain grass in my front porch container left from my summer arrangement. I added a few okra stems from Red Cedar to the fountain grass. I thought they were unique and I love things that are different and unexpected. I simply added an owl statue, a pumpkin, a gourd and a few hedge apples from a trail by my house. At first I poked tree limbs around the side for a spiller, but they quickly dried up. I then decided to add spanish moss for a creepy effect and wrapped a large spider that I wasnâ€™t using around the pot.

I hope youâ€™ve enjoyed a few of my little touches of fall around my home. Have a great weekend!

Linking to Inspire Me Please, Whatâ€™s Shakin Link Party

Date Created

2013/10/18

Author

queenie