

Do You Know Your Decorating Style?

Do you know your decorating style? While looking for ideas on organizing my home I came across a blog post from 7th House on the Left. Have I mentioned I'm easily distracted? The post mentioned Home Goods's Stylescope quiz and I'm a sucker for any quiz that reveals something about your personality. I also happen to love Marshall's/ Home Goods. The quiz asks you to pick out five images from a collage and then the brains/computer behind Stylescope kicks out a decorating style based upon the images you've chosen.

My results classified me as New Country. According to HomeGoods Stylescope, “New Country understands the value of slowing down, enjoying the sunsets, bringing the outside in, and feeling a real sense of relaxation in her space. She is laidback, but her style is still intentional and beautiful in its rustic elegance. New Country homes have a very natural ease, but they’re not their grandmothers’ old-fashioned country homes. Warm, nature-inspired hues blend with brighter, contemporary elements for an updated country look.” I sort of new that my style leaned toward a more contemporary country look. I love just about everything from Pottery Barn. What’s neat about the results is they even list decorating blogs that match your style.

There are a few rooms in my home I plan to update this year. For more decorating inspiration, check out my friend Kyra’s post on trends for 2014. As you’re making your wish list of decor items it might be helpful to also read this advice from the Nate Berkus book, Things That Matter.

If you have a spare minute or two take the HomeGoods Stylescope quiz. What’s your decorating style?
