I love a good find and I love when bloggers share some of their favorite products. I asked Wendy from Pretty Well Organized to share a few of her favorite organization finds. I met Wendy at the SNAP Conference I attended back in the Spring. I am impressed with how she is able to work full time and run a blog with a toddler at home and another baby on the way. She is also one of the most polished and stylish looking pregnant women I've ever met. Wendy shares lots of organizational tips and how she's able to juggle everything at Pretty Well Organized. She's a super sweet person and recently opened an Etsy shop where you can purchase her planner and other organization items.

My name is Wendy and I am an auditor by day, blogger by night. I am a mother to a beautiful 3 and a half year old daughter and I have a son on the way in October. I love sharing my journey to becoming more organized and how we manage to keep things under control over on my blog Pretty Well Organized. It is a process not an over night fix, and I love sharing our journey with others.

The white baskets are from Target and are great everywhere in the house. I use them in cabinets to keep things in order whether it's the laundry room, in a pantry, in kitchen cabinets, in kids closets—really anywhere. They are so versatile and wash really easily. Dress them up with a bookplate for a grown up look.

For anything accessories, I love the acrylic containers from The Container Store. I use these in the bathroom or in the closet to keep accessories together.

For travel, I love Eagle Creek Packing Cubes from The Container Store. They are fantastic for packing outfits together and keeping your suitcase organized!

Some of my favorite posts I've shared on organization are: Why I Blog, How I Stay Organized and A Few of My Favorite Desk Supplies, and Digital Picture Organization

Some of my favorite Organization Bloggers: A Bowl Full of Lemons, I Heart Organizing and Ask Anna
