

Gift Wrapping with Tea Towels

Description

default watermark

Tea Towel Gift Wrap

Tea towels are not only useful for drying dishes, but they make great easy gift wrap that you can reuse. You can find inexpensive tea towels that cost just as much as a gift bag or wrapping paper. A great time to stock up on Holiday printed towels is after Christmas when they are on clearance.

A few years ago I was on a Rum Chata kick and gifted several people with a bottle of it. Rum Chata is a delicious cream liqueur which has hints of cinnamon. It tastes great in hot chocolate, coffee or just on the rocks. I simply wrapped the tea towel around the bottle and then tied it with ribbon. I added a little jingle bell which has been in my stash of wrapping paper for a few years. You can buy a package of them at Hobby Lobby or Michaels.

You can also use a tea towel to wrap a book depending on the size of your book. I wrapped a cookbook which was included in my list of gifts for the book lover. You can see the full list HERE. Simply place your book in the middle and fold the sides over. Twist the last two sides and attach a ribbon and an embellishment. I used part of a Christmas sprig as an embellishment, but you could also tie an ornament or pretty gift tag to the ribbon.

My next gift is a box of olive oils. All of my examples happen to be food related, but you can use tea towels on any gift as long as itâ€™s not too big. You obviously wouldnâ€™t want to use one on a shirt box. I found the little chalkboard clips at Michaels. I loved them so much I bought several packages, but I wasnâ€™t sure what I was going to do with them. I just knew I couldnâ€™t pass them up. It turns out it looks very cute clipped to my package and itâ€™s also reusable.

I hope youâ€™ve enjoyed these ideas. I love pretty packaging. I realize itâ€™s not everyoneâ€™s thing, but to me itâ€™s what makes gift wrapping fun. Wrapping with tea towels is a lot easier than wrestling with paper and tape. Happy Wrapping!

If you like these ideas please share them with your friends on Facebook or on other social media. You can do so by clicking on the social media buttons below!

Linking to: Treasure Box Tuesday, Hit Me With Your Best Shot

Date Created

2014/12/15

Author

queenie