

Joy Peace Love

I wish you all Joy, Peace and Love this holiday season! My dog Fritz was the model for my Christmas card this year. I actually took this picture a few years ago and came across it at Thanksgiving. My kids hate posing for pictures so this is what happens when I'm short on time and don't have a good family picture, my dog becomes the star of the show. My husband would tell you Fritz is the star of the show every day.

I hope you receive not only presents, but gifts of the spirit this Christmas. I shared the story of when my daughter discovered the truth about Santa Claus in this post. It's actually one of my favorite posts I've written over the past few years. Santa still visits our home, but my hope is that my children one day find more joy in giving than receiving.

I will be taking some time off from blogging over the next two weeks, but will continue to occasionally share things on Instagram, Facebook and Twitter. You can click on the social media links if you'd like to follow me there. I'm looking forward to sharing a little project I've been working on the end of this month.

Have a safe, healthy and happy holiday. Merry Christmas and thanks for reading my joyful scribbles!
