7 delicious SOUP recipes

January is National Soup Month and I can't think of a better month to enjoy a nice bowl of warm soup besides February. You can pretty much count on the months of January and February being cold in Kansas. I'm not much of a soup eater during the summer months. Soup is one of those comfort foods I like to eat on a cold winter day.

I've rounded up a few of my past soup recipes as well as a few others I've tried from other bloggers. I tend to fall into a bad habit of making the same two or three soups, I really need to get out of my box when it comes to trying other soup recipes. I've included a few here that might be a little out of your box.

Eggplant Parmesan Soupâ€“ My friend Anne shared this soup recipe with me. Iâ€™m not sure I would have ever tried it myself, but itâ€™s delicious. I love eggplant parmesan and it tastes very similar.

Hearty Potato Sausage Soupâ€™ My friend Cindy shared this potato sausage soup with me. Itâ€™s very different from my normal go-to potato soup. I like the addition of sausage and mushrooms.

Chicken Tortilla Soupâ€™“ My friend Kristin shared this chicken tortilla soup with me. Are you noticing a trend here? As the Beatles used to sing, â€™œl get by with a little help from my friends.â€™œ”

Weight Watchers Taco Soup – It’s that time of year Oprah and many others are counting points. I’ve made this soup in the past and enjoyed it.

Shrimp and Sausage Cioppino – I love this cioppino recipe from Giada. It’s on my list to make again soon.

Slow Cooker Jambalayaâ€“ My friend Keri made this for lunch for me and I enjoy making it now as well. It gives me a little taste of New Orleans.

Lasagna Soupâ€“ This recipe is from a Farmgirlâ€™s Dabbles. It truly is like lasagna in a bowl.

Still in need of more soup recipes. I have several more under my recipes tab in my menu bar above. Iâ€™m not a big tomato soup fan, but if you are you can find the recipe for Nordstromâ€™s popular Tomato Soup here.

I hope you find a soup you enjoy and stay warm this winter!
