

Curbside Eating at Food Trucks

Description

default watermark

curbside eating at FOOD TRUCKS
joyfulscriblings.com

The popularity of curbside eating at food trucks is growing in the Kansas City area. Food trucks have been around for years, but seem to have become more of a trend in the last few years. My Live Curiously Challenge for this month was to try a new restaurant or cafe. I decided to take it a step further and attended a food truck rally which occurs the first Friday of every month in downtown Kansas City. This month has been crazy for me with clearing out a house we sold and helping my parents relocate to a new home. I've been doing a lot of eating out and takeout meals. Things have been a little quiet on my blog, but I hope to share a lot more in May. As the weather gets warmer food trucks can be a great way to try some local specialties.

I didn't get a chance to try anything from Wilma's, but I love the truck.

The stuffed chicken wings were recommended to us from Bochi, but I have to admit they were okay, but not my favorite. Iâ€™m more of a buffalo wing kind of gal. You can check out their Facebook page here.

I have tried El Tendorâ€™s food before and loved it. They are often parked at Somerset Ridge Winery on the weekends. They serve Spanish cuisine and I do mean cuisine. Iâ€™m surprised at the dishes these ladies create in such a small truck. Check out their Facebook page here.

My favorite part of a meal is dessert. This is the cinnamon sugar Liege waffle in blue to honor the Kansas City Royals. You can check out The Waffler here.

Beauty of the Bistro wasnâ€™t at the rally, but Iâ€™ve ordered food from her several times. She often parks at spots in the Johnson County area. You can check out the details on the Beauty of the Bistro Facebook page. The tacos and crawfish mac and cheese are delicious!

Are you scared to eat at food trucks? If so, have I enticed you to give them a try? I love to eat al fresco on a beautiful sunny day. Have you tried any of these food trucks or do you have a favorite? Please share in the comments.

Date Created

2016/04/21

Author

queenie

default watermark