

5 Hard to Kill Houseplants

Description

default watermark

I recently shared this picture of an orchid on my Instagram and Facebook accounts. Orchids in my opinion are NOT a hard to kill houseplant. However, Iâ€™m sharing a few plants that my not so green thumb has managed to keep alive for a least a few years with minimal effort. They are like Bruce Willis in a Die Hard movie, tough to kill.

I think orchids are beautiful, but high maintenance. I came across this beauty at my local Price Chopper. It was on sale for only $10 so I thought I would make another attempt at caring for an orchid. Flowers are about the same price and they only last a week if youâ€™re lucky. Iâ€™m going on week two of owning this orchid and unfortunately Iâ€™ve already lost three blooms. Iâ€™ve moved it two different locations, but still no luck. I haven't given up hope, but I'm thinking orchids require a lot of patience which is something I'm short on.

Here are a few plants I have had success with over the years and if you're like me and tend to be neglectful, they will forgive you.

default watermark

5 Hard to Kill Houseplants

joyfulscribblings.com

Pictured from top left to right:

- Pony Tail Palm
- Rubber Plant
- Aloe Plant
- Assorted Succulent plants
- Jade Plant -which is also considered a succulent

If by chance you happen to have a green thumb with orchids do tell what the secret is. Do you have a favorite hard to kill houseplant?

If youâ€™re in need of some container gardening tips check out this post and this post.

Date Created

2016/06/23

Author

queenie

default watermark